A LETTER FROM WASHINGTON.

Meakill, Lewis county, Wash. 4 February 8, 1911.

Editor Big Sandy News:

I see the correspondents to the News make mention of the winter. So I will tell you a little about the weather here. It began to rain about the 1st of November in earnest and I think it is safe to say that we have not had a dozen days from that time till now that it has not rained or snowed. The first snow was on the 8th of January and it has snowed awhile and rained a while up until now and we have snow on the ground now. But today has looked cheerful. The sun rose right over Mount Adams this morning. As I walked to the barn my shadow looked a hundred feet long. I turned and looked west and two beautiful rainbows laid across the western horizon, and the sun has shown all day, but the clouds have darkened the eastern and northern horizon tonight, so it looks like it is a little too soon to sing dark clouds come again no more, and the man that has had dry feet on the Pacific slope is the man that stayed in the house or walked the plank. And often when the stock has been turned out to water it would be back to the barn door before the stalls could be made ready for them. Well I will soon have in four years on this slope and it is duller as to business than at any time since I have been here. When business is brisk I can hear at least a dozen mill whistles, but it is not the case now, and men are walking the railroad hunting for work.

I live in a quarter of a mile of the railroad and am at the road most every day, and I see men 1, 2, 3 and 4 going with their quilts and blankets on their backs hunting for work, some with a little money and some with none. And none with enough to safely pay their railroad fare from camp to camp to hunt work so they bundle their blankets and walk and stop at night in huts and sheds with a few cents worth of provisions that they have got at some grocery store. The grocery stores seem to be the only people that is doing the business. And talk about high tariff, they are the people than can deny it, and all tell you why they have to do it. Some say Aldrich and Payne, some say the packers and cold storage and others charge it to the farmers, but all agree with business men and all say that times are dull extremely dull, unless it is a groceryman or a man traveling for a grocery house they say "Oh, fairly good."

I was around my placetoday and would look at the sun glisten on Mount Banier, Mount Adams and Mount St. Helena and the Cascade range and their white caps and tops, and hoped the rain, snow, mud and slush had now stopped and the whistles would soon be heard and times would soon get better. One mill has run on full time in hearing of my place this winter, some have run eight hour days part of the time and some ten mills are in hearing when they run.

CONCERNING APPLES.

Growing Fruit is Vastly More Profitable Than Raising Tobacco.

A Warren county farmer is preparing to put thirty-three acres of land in apples and peach trees, and other farmers in the same county will follow his example. Why shouldn't they? A dispatch in the Courier-Journal told of two Kentuckians who purchased a rundown apple orchard over in Ohio, trimmed it and sprayed it and made enough from the first crop of apples to pay for it. Good apples are in demand, and the same may be said of good peaches. It is a good deal easier to trim and spray an orchard than
